The aspirations and the profile of the students have changed during these years of management education. Earlier, students would join PG after completing their undergraduate students. The current trend is that, after working for a couple of years, students do an MBA. The cost of higher education has gone up drastically and since MBA is a terminal course, students have started to calculate the ROIs. There is a huge discrimination between government and private schools. Private schools do not get the kind of considerations that IIMs get.
