

Ecology's sustainability

Among the modern times where,
we have laws for ecology's conservation,
Here is an urban myth,
Which made everyone's life better.

Belief of sacred groves is the myth,
Which is protecting the lungs of the earth.
It's a myth with a long history,
That made people conserve their future unknowingly.

United Nations now has life on land:
As an SDG to stop the earth's end.
United Indian culture had this thought,
Long before many civilizations of world emerged.

The people since ages, as communities,
Without having any concept of human-wildlife conflict,
Considered eco- system as deity,
For ecology's sustainability.

It's an example for how to be a human,
For us modern people,
Who consider ecology as a commodity,
For their own prosperity.

~Gagan R Maileshwar

School of Liberal Arts, Alliance University